

Paul Green Foundation

NEWS – February 2011

the last day of the month!

PAUL GREEN FOUNDATION MISSION:

To encourage, foster, support and advance the ideals and principles of human rights.
(to abolish the death penalty)

To own, protect, preserve and promote the literary works of Paul Green.

To encourage and promote dramatic art with special emphasis on symphonic outdoor drama.

HUMAN RIGHTS. Our Friends at

tell us to: Take Action for Illinois

Gov. Pat Quinn says he'll decide "relatively soon," so get in your opinion with a quick call to his staff at (312) 814-2121, and say, "I'd like Gov. Quinn to sign the repeal bill." South African Archbishop Desmond Tutu was among scores of people to weigh in as he considers what to do about a bill that would ban capital punishment in Illinois.

The governor faces a March 18 deadline to act on the death penalty ban. He could do nothing and allow it to become law. He could veto it outright. Or he could use his amendatory veto power to rewrite the legislation, which would effectively kill it since the bill was passed by the previous General Assembly. By Rick Pearson, Tribune

PRESERVE AND PROMOTE LITERARY WORKS.

Paul Green Festival Slated for fall 2011

In fall 2011, plans are underway to honor the 30th anniversary of Paul Green's death. Hopefully held in Harnett County, the Festival will feature Green's vast array of work, including a dramatic piece. This Festival may coincide with the Foundation's annual meeting and the Festival will be open to the public.

SYMPHONIC OUTDOOR DRAMA.

Thomas Harriot College of Arts and Sciences Voyages of Discovery Lecture Series at East Carolina University

March 24, 7 p.m., Wright Auditorium East Carolina University Greenville, NC
The Lost Colony historian, Ms. lebame houston will speak on James Harriot's, Briefe and True Report of The Lost Colony Drama in the New Virginia"

The Lost Colony will celebrate its 73rd season

May 28-August 20

*Marsha Warren, Director
Paul Green Foundation
P.O. Box 2624, Chapel Hill,
NC 27515 (919) 929-6422*